2020 researchers: Train To Move (T2M) is a new transnational fellowship programme developed by the Università degli Studi di Torino (UNITO) with the active support of Compagnia di San Paolo.

In line with European Research Area (ERA) objectives, the programme’s goal is to create favourable conditions for transnational mobility of highly skilled researchers while promoting transectoral mobility between academic and non-academic sectors. This will be pursued by providing fellows with high level training in scientific and complementary skills which will match both public and private sector needs. Fellows will be selected through a transparent selection process carried out by independent experts.

The programme will last 5 years, issuing 2 calls for proposals through which a total of 28 fellowships will be awarded. The first call for proposals will be launched in March 2014, the second in March 2015.

The Università degli Studi di Torino (UNITO) is one of Italy’s oldest and most highly regarded universities. With approximately 70,000 students, 4,000 academic, administrative and technical staff members, 1800 post-graduate and post-doctoral students and 120 buildings in different parts of Torino and other key areas of Piedmont, UNITO is a “city-within-a-city”, promoting culture and producing research, innovation, training and employment.

UNITO is now one of the largest universities in Italy, open to international research and training. It conducts scientific research and offers courses in all disciplines except engineering and architecture.

On the local level, UNITO pursues the region’s socio-economic development together with local stakeholders. As part of this effort, UNITO also works together with the banking foundation Compagnia di San Paolo supporting joint programmes on research and higher education. Train to Move is one of the several outputs of this cooperation.
